פרק ו', משנה ה': אל תבקש גדולה לעצמך, ואל תחמוד כבוד. יותר מלמודך עשה, ואל תתאוה לשולחנם של מלכים, ששולחנך גדול משולחנם וכתרך גדול מכתרם; ונאמן הוא בעל מלאכתך שישלם לך שכר פעלתך.

Chapter 6, Mishnah 5: Do not seek greatness for yourself, and do not desire honor. More than you study, do. Do not desire the table of kings. Your table is greater than theirs, and your crown is greater than theirs. Your Employer is faithful to pay you for the rewards of your work.

The Simple Explanation

Our Mishnah is part of the sixth chapter of Pirkei Avos, known as "Kinyan Torah – Acquiring the Torah." As in the entire chapter, these teachings focus on the importance of Torah study.

"Do not seek greatness for yourself." Do not run after positions of leadership. "Do not desire honor," one who wishes honor for his Torah knowledge appears to be studying for ulterior motives. "More than you study, do." Your Mitzvah observance must outweigh your Torah study. This is in keeping with the teaching that "one whose deeds are greater than his wisdom is like a tree with many roots and few branches. All the storms in the world cannot budge it from its place." Our teaching continues, "Do not desire the table of kings, for your table is greater than theirs." "Your table" refers to the reward you will receive for Torah study<sup>2</sup>.

Difficulties in Understanding the Mishnah

We must understand why one involved with Torah study would desire a king's table! The order in which the Mishnah lists these teachings renders this question much more difficult. First, the Mishnah tells us to neither seek greatness nor desire honor. Only then are we taught not to choose sitting at a royal table. One not interested in honor would not care about a king's table!

However, from the Mishnah, it seems that a royal table is not all that bad. The Mishnah teaches us that the reason not to desire it is that "your table is greater than theirs." It would seem as if, otherwise, there might be a reason to want a king's table.

THE RASHI OF THE WEEK

The Explanation

The Sages teach us that Pirkei Avos teaches one how to be a Chossid. The meaning of the word "Chossid" in this context means going beyond what the letter of the law requires<sup>3</sup>. Hence, the same is true of Avos's teachings on acquiring the Torah. We are discussing one whose toil in Torah study is way beyond what one might expect. Granted, he enjoys learning Torah; however, his exertion is far greater than it would be were his studies purely for the pleasure he derives.

This is in keeping with the words of the Mishnah, "More than you study, do." We explained that the deed expressed here refers to Mitzvah performance, that "one's deeds must be greater than his wisdom." That is true. However, it is also possible to explain it differently. The deed referred to here can be Torah study itself. The Mishnah says that one should force oneself to study beyond that to which one may naturally be accustomed.

The Torah makes a specific promise to one who studies in this manner. The Torah states, "If you follow My statutes," which means<sup>4</sup> "that you toil in the study of Torah." The result of this will be that you shall receive the most significant rewards<sup>5</sup>; "I will give your rains in their time, the Land will yield its produce, and the tree of the field will give forth its fruit ..." In other words, he will surely obtain all of his physical needs. This means he controls the world. This is why the Sages say the answer to the question, "Who are our kings?" is the rabbis<sup>6</sup>.

That is why the Mishnah teaches us not to desire the table of kings. One who toils in Torah and exerts himself beyond his ability is rewarded with sitting at the royal table. Nevertheless, one should not desire this. The Mishnah is not teaching us to avoid involvement with the physical, material world. On the contrary, one must use this physical world to elevate it to holiness. However, one must not desire or take pleasure from the physical for its own sake<sup>7</sup>.

However, this begs the question, why should one not want the king's table? Elevating the world to G-dliness is an integral part of our mission in this world. The explanation is that "your table is greater than theirs and your crown is greater than theirs." The connection with Hashem, which one can achieve through Torah study, is far greater than anything one can attain through elevating the physical<sup>8</sup>. However, we must be involved with both. In this manner, we will fulfill Hashem's desire to have a dwelling place in this world. Thereby, we will bring the complete and true redemption now.
