Rashi in His Own Words

במדבר א', מ"ט: אַךְ אֶת־מִטָּה לֹוִי לֹא תִפְקֹד וְאֶת־רֵאשִׁים לֹא תִשָּׂא בְּתוֹךְ בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל:

רש"י ד"ה אך את מטה לוי לא תפקד: כדאי הוא לגיון של מלך להיות נמנה לבדו. דבר אחר, צפה הקב"ה שעתידה לעמוד גזירה על כל הנמנין מבין עשרים שנה ומעלה שימותו במדבר, אמר אל יהיו אלו בכלל, לפי שהם שלי, שלא טעו בעגל:

Bamidbar 1:49: Only the tribe of Levi you shall not count, and you shall not reckon their total among the Jewish people.

Rashi Heading: Only the tribe of Levi you shall not count: The legion of the king deserves to be counted on its own. Another explanation (is that) the Holy One Blessed Be He foresaw that a decree was destined to be enacted against all those counted from twenty years and upward¹, that they would die in the desert. He said, "Let these (the tribe of Levi) not be included, for they are Mine; because they did not err with the golden calf."

Synopsis

In this week's Torah portion, Bamidbar, we are told that the entire Jewish Nation was counted. Upon concluding the detailed census, the Torah tells us that the tribe of Levi was omitted. It says that² "Only the tribe of Levi you shall not count, and you shall not reckon their total among the Jewish people." The Torah does not say not to count the tribe of Levi; it says not to count them "among the (rest of the) Jewish people." Indeed they were counted³. However their census was separate from, and performed in a different manner than that of the rest of the Jews⁴.

Rashi give two explanations for this. The first is that the tribe of Levi is the "King's Legion." As such they deserve to be counted on their own. His second explanation is that Hashem foresaw that everyone who was counted from the age of 20 would die in the wilderness. He did not want the Levites who did not sin with the Golden Calf, to be included in this decree. Hence He counted them separately from the age of one month.

Why does Rashi offer two explanations? The first one would seem to suffice. This is especially true being that Rashi's second explanation does not seem to be in accordance with Peshat.

1. That included all other Jews who were counted prior to the counting of the tribe of Levi.

2. Bamidbar 1:49.

3. See our Parshah beginning with Bamidbar 3:15.

4. All males from the other tribes were counted from age 20 and older. The males of the tribe of Levi were counted beginning from the age of one month.

THE RASHI OF THE WEEK

The explanation is that Rashi is actually answering a different question. Why does the Torah say both “you shall not count” them and “you shall not reckon their total?” Each expression must refer to a different aspect of counting. The difference is that “count” is a verb which refers to the act of counting. “You shall not reckon their total” refers to knowing the grand total of Levites.

The other tribes (excluding the Levites) were counted by each giving a half-shekel⁵. The Shekalim were counted in order to determine the number of Jews⁶. The Levites were counted in a different manner; they were counted⁷ “according to Hashem’s word.”

This explains the seeming redundancy in the verse. “You shall not reckon their total,” meaning that the sum of the tribe of Levi was not included with that of the other Jews. Additionally, “you shall not count” them. The method of counting the Levites was completely different than that used to count the other tribes.

Rashi’s Explanation

This week's Torah portion, Bamidbar, begins with a census of all of the tribes of Israel. However, conspicuous by their absence is the tribe of Levi. They were not included in the census. The Torah says that² “Only the tribe of Levi you shall not count, and you shall not reckon their total among the Jewish people.” Rashi cites the words “only the tribe of Levi you shall not count.” He explains that “The legion of the king deserves to be counted on its own. Another explanation (is that) the Holy One Blessed Be He foresaw that a decree was destined to be enacted against all those counted from twenty years and upward, that they would die in the desert. He said, ‘Let these (the tribe of Levi) not be included, for they are Mine because they did not err with the golden calf.’”

Rashi is not explaining the reason that the Levites were not counted. Indeed they were counted, albeit separately from the other tribes³. They were also counted in a different manner and with different parameters. Each member of the tribe of Levi was counted beginning from the age of one month. The rest of the Jews were counted from the age of 20. The verse which we are explaining says specifically that the Levites were not counted “among the Jewish people,” together with the other Jews. It does not say that they were not counted.

This is what seems to bother Rashi. Why was the tribe of Levi counted separately from the rest of the Jews? He gives two answers to this question. First he explains that they are Hashem’s legion, His special troops. This being the case they deserve to be counted individually. His second explanation is that there was a decree issued against those who were counted from the age of 20. In as much as the Levites are “His,” Hashem did not want them to be included in this decree.

Difficulties in Understanding Rashi

Rashi selects the words “only the tribe of Levi you shall not count” as the heading of his comments. As we have discussed many times, that means that those are the only words from the verse which he is explaining. However based on our explanation he is also (or primarily) explaining the words “among the Jewish people.” His comments explain why the Levites were not counted among – meaning together with – the rest of the Jewish people. This being the case he should include these words in his heading. At the very least he should write etcetera (וגומר) after the heading to at least hint that these words are also being explained.

Additionally, we are saying that Rashi is bothered by the fact that the tribe of Levi was not counted together with the other Jews. If that is the case, Rashi should have explained this earlier. The Torah said⁸ “But the Levites, according to their father’s tribe were not counted among them.” At that point, prior to our verse, the difficulty was already present. Yet there Rashi says nothing.

Finally, why does Rashi need to give two different explanations here? His first explanation seems to explain our difficulty. Here the need for a second explanation is particularly difficult. The second explanation seems to be Midrashic. It seems to have nothing whatsoever to do with Peshat.

The Explanation

The difficulty with our verse which bothers Rashi has nothing to do with the fact that the tribe of Levi was counted separately. Rashi already told us at the beginning of our Torah portion that “Because they (the Jews) were dear to Him, He counted them often.” The tribe of Levi is the most precious from among the Jews themselves. It is therefore logical to assume that their count would be different than that of the rest of the Jews.

What actually bothers Rashi is as follows. There seems to be a redundancy within our verse itself. It says² “Only the tribe of Levi you shall not count, and you shall not reckon their total among the Jewish people.” Both “you shall not count” and “you shall not reckon their total” seem to mean the same thing. Why does the verse seem to repeat itself? This is what Rashi is explaining.

Despite the fact that both words have the same general meaning, each refers to a different sort of counting. “Count” is a verb which refers to the act of counting. “Reckon their total” refers to determining the actual sum of those who are being counted.

8. Bamidbar 1:47.

THE RASHI OF THE WEEK

According to Rashi there is an essential difference between how the Jews were counted and how the tribe of Levi was counted. The other tribes were counted by each male above the age of 20 giving a half-shekel⁵. Rashi explains it in the following manner⁶. “When you wish to take the sum of their numbers to know how many they are, do not count each individual. (Rather) each one shall give a half-shekel, and you shall count the shekels. (That is how) you will know their number.”

The Torah explains that the Levites were counted⁷ “according to Hashem’s word.” Rashi explains this to mean the following. “Moshe said to Hashem, ‘How can I enter their tents in order to know how many babies they have?’ The Holy One blessed be He replied to him, ‘you do your part, and I will do Mine.’ Moshe went and stood at the entrance of the tent. The Shechinah preceded him. A heavenly voice then emanated from the tent saying, ‘There are this many babies in this tent.’ That is why it says ‘according to G-d’s word.’”

In other words “you shall not reckon their total among the Jewish people.” This means that the total of Levites will not be included with the count of all of the other tribes. Additionally, “the tribe of Levi you shall not count.” Even the manner of counting the tribe of Levi is totally different than the manner in which all of the other tribes were counted.

A Deeper Lesson from Rashi

There are three pillars upon which the world rests; Torah, the service (of sacrifices) and acts of loving kindness¹⁰. These are the three types of Divine service. Torah refers to Torah study. Service, the work of offering sacrifices refers to prayer. Today we pray in place of offering sacrifices. Deeds of loving kindness refers to the observance of Mitzvos.

Mitzvos were given with a specific count, a particular number. There are 613 Mitzvos. Furthermore, we are prohibited to either add to or subtract from any Mitzvah¹¹. The reason for this is that the primary idea of Mitzvos is to draw down G-dliness into this physical, limited world¹². That is the reason that most Mitzvos are practical and action oriented. The majority of Divine commandments must be fulfilled with physical, limited objects. This is the idea of counting; numbers have this same limitation. That is associated with all of the tribes besides Levi. We must all be counted.

In contrast to this we have the tribe of Levi. They are more connected with Torah study. Torah is beyond the physical limitations of counting. It is therefore written about Torah that¹³ “Longer than the earth is its measure, and wider than the sea.” However, the fact that it can be compared to the earth and the sea means that on a certain level it does have a count, a limitation.

This is the idea of the tribe of Levi; they could indeed be counted. Nevertheless their count was separate from everyone else’s. They were Hashem’s legion, but they still needed to connect to their fellow Jews. This is because the Levites were¹⁴ “...set aside to serve G-d and minister unto Him and to instruct people at large in His just paths and righteous judgments, as the Torah says¹⁵, ‘They will teach Your judgments to Yaakov and Your Torah to Yisroel.’ Therefore they were set apart from the ways of the world. They do not wage war like the remainder of the Jewish people, nor do they receive an inheritance, nor do they acquire for themselves through their physical power. Instead, they are Hashem's legion, as the Torah states¹⁶, ‘G-d has blessed His legion.’ He also provides for them, as it is written¹⁷, ‘I am your portion and your inheritance.’”

The service of prayer, however, is that of the “Kohen Gadol – High Priest.” His entire being was totally dedicated to Hashem. Through “Tefillah – Prayer” one can become totally bound with G-d. One can reach a level which completely transcends any count, any limitation whatsoever. This is the idea of the Kohen Gadol, who was so bound with Hashem that he could never even leave Yerushalayim.

That is why Rashi tells us¹⁸ that Aharon the Kohen Gadol was not included in any count, not even the count of the tribe of Levi.
